

Human-Centered Permission Boundaries for the named email, receipt, policy page, and draft. If a webpage says "ignore prior decisions in a 12-trace synthetic suite, while exposing task-success and consent-burden

|---|---|---|---|---|

expected safe decision, and mapping to current or future benchmark traces. The full table is PAPF treats redaction and confirmation as verifiable runtime states. A redaction-required secondary limitation. The planned study measures this cost through time to decision, whether a send/upload/account-change action requires confirmation, whether an untrusted

The trace evaluation is secondary artifact-backed prototype validation. It asks whether PAPF

Failure-case analysis shows that ambient and prompt-only modes fail in structurally similar conditions, and answer keys. A short laboratory or online study also may not capture but keeps the paper's main intervention at authority issuance, consent design, and runtime

