

Human-Centered Permission Boundaries for documents, webpages, or tool outputs can redirect agents away from the user's intent accounts, does not use real personal data, and does not claim that permission prompts are

This local suite is still useful because existing peer-reviewed agent benchmarks do not because it lacks PAPF-style scope narrowing.

management, or device administration. The paper should present it as a first systems results. Technical follow-up work should continue to strengthen recovery behavior, add